Nurturing Wildflowers

I empathize with the reader's letter [Habitat Destruction, July 2018]. I, too, have noticed that untimely mowing has caused many wildflowers to disappear, which means habitat loss for those feeding on them.

My neighborhood subdivision has lovely homes with beautifully maintained yards and cultivated plants. I maintain my front yard to conform. I have a corner lot that has a county road on one side. I reserve a strip of property along the right-of-way for wildflowers, and I delay mowing there.

I enjoyed reading about Hunter Beaton's Eagle Scout project [Carrying Through, Currents, July 2018]. What a fine young man to take on this very worthwhile project that will be a gift to so many children in need for years to come. The article did not mention where Hunter will be attending college, but since my allegiance is to Baylor University, I was hoping that was his plan. He would be a great fit.

Give Us Credit

The By the Numbers item in Currents in July could be misleading. It's possible that because there are so many people in Texas who are not in debt, that is what causes the state to rank 46th among all states in average credit score. The longer a person goes without paying anything on time, the lower his or her score goes. So, it is possible that our low average just might mean that we have more people who are not in debt.

With that, just 11 days short of finishing his record 27th and final major-league season, Ryan, a Texas Ranger, left the game and took with him dozens of pitching records, including 5,714 strikeouts and seven no-hitters.

I intended to try only the apple turnover.

Five minutes later, I stand at the counter, balancing a jar of apple butter, a jar of jelly, a strudel, a slice of pie and the turnover. That's when another visitor mentions the apple ice cream. "Why hasn't Blue Bell caught on to that flavor?" he asks the cashier.

I turn back to find the ice cream.

Outside Love Creek Orchards' Apple Store in Medina, I spread my bounty on a bright red picnic table and sample the pastries. I savor the pie's flawless golden crust. The ice cream is light, not too sweet, and goes down way too easy.

Such are the pleasures you'll find in the Texas Hill Country, which is adorned with gems like this shop. Visually, the region offers a rolling landscape of limestone-and-granite hills, clear rivers, cedar and cypress trees, and regional haunts that delight weekend visitors and seasoned travelers.

More than 150 years ago, German immigrants were lured to Central Texas by tales of fertile soil and freedom from oppression. Instead, they found rocky fields that had to be cleared by hand and the threat of contentious and fast-moving Comanche. The early settlers persevered and built towns of precise and tidy stone structures, each a day's wagon ride—about 20 miles—from its neighbor. Today, we know some of those settlements as Fredericksburg, Kerrville, New Braunfels, Medina, Mason, Llano and Camp Verde.

Starting in the southwest corner of the Hill Country, FM 337 between Camp Wood and Medina is one of the most scenic drives in Texas. Along a curvaceous stretch popular with motorcyclists, signs warn of “Falling Rocks” going east and “Fallen Rocks” going west, a curious temporal twist. The rise of the Edwards Plateau reveals itself along this 60-mile route, displaying limestone cliffs and following the meandering Medina River.

Along the way, I read about community history. Vanderpool grew out of a Republic of Texas land grant in 1849. Originally called Bugscuffle, the town was abandoned following Comanche raids but re-established in the 1880s. Camp Verde was established to service the region’s military outposts.

East of Medina, freethinkers, including doctors, scholars, philosophers and aristocrats who fled the German Revolution of 1848, sought to establish intellectual, secular and democratic societies advocating scientific reason and religious freedom. They built the towns of Boerne, Comfort, Luckenbach and Sisterdale. Residents met to discuss politics, philosophy and literature; in such meetings, they spoke in the intellectual’s language of Latin, so the towns were dubbed the “Latin Colonies” of Texas.

Boerne was founded in 1849 and originally named Tusculum, after the home of Roman writer and orator Cicero. In 1852, it was renamed for Jewish-German journalist and satirist Karl Ludwig Börne. The town was known as a health resort in the late 1800s because of its proximity to Cibolo Creek and the Guadalupe River.

I drive north along FM 474 to find the Cave Without a Name. Mike Burrell, tour guide and cave manager, leads me down 80 feet of staircases through layers of geologic and human history. At the first landing, a pile of bones is evidence that eons of unlucky animals fell to their deaths through the small entrance above. Down another level, we find a ledge where a whiskey still dripped rebelliously during Prohibition.

In 1935, a group of youngsters shimmied down the sinkhole entrance with a kerosene lantern and crawled through a series of tight turns before finding cathedral-like rooms.

Burrell lights up the rooms as we walk through, one side formed by the subterranean streams of the Guadalupe River, the other by the slow drip of mineral-rich water onto the cave floor. Some of the largest calcite formations in the nation can be found here, and 3½ miles of the cave have been mapped, making it the seventh-longest in Texas.

We pass a small platform where the owners host concerts. Burrell replays a few previous performances on his phone and offers me a chance to sing. I manage a few lines of the Battle Hymn of the Republic and marvel at the resonance.

Back at ground level, I rush to Tootie's. Ruby

Lorraine "Tootie" Feagan moved her 20-year-old pie company from Medina to Boerne in 2005. The new building, situated in a business park, serves as a bustling outpost for Tootie Pie Co.

To reach the unlikely address, I zoom past a wrecker service and RV repair shop to find the modest storefront, where cubicle walls support a chalkboard listing a dozen offerings and seasonal specials. It's not a homey setting, but the pies are delicious. I sample the heavenly chocolate, lemon icebox and pecan, rolling my eyes in delight.

Another day's wagon ride up Interstate 10 takes me to Comfort, where there are more than 100 historic buildings constructed before 1910. Seven of them, including the old Ingenuhuett General Store, were designed by British architect Alfred Giles.

High's Cafe & Store drew in coffee lovers when it opened on ## Fort Martin Scott was the first U.S. Army post on the Texas frontier.

High Street in 2005 and has become a reliable staple for chef-inspired café fare. Proprietors Denise Rabalais and Brent Ault attract a dedicated following, including a steady stream of locals who catch up and share a bite on the covered patio.

Comfort was another of the Latin Colonies, proud of independent thought and human rights for all. In 1862, eight years after the town's founding, the Confederate Army called upon the locals to join their side in the Civil War. Thirty-six men and boys who refused were killed.

I walk a half-mile down the street from the café to see the Treue der Union, or “Loyal to the Union,” Monument. Etched into the surface of the 20-foot-tall limestone obelisk are the 36 names. The 1866 dedication ceremony was front-page news even in Harper's Weekly.

East of Comfort, RM 473 turns onto Old Number 9 Highway and twists past fields of livestock penned by hand-stacked rock walls. Old Tunnel State Park was originally a railroad tunnel built in 1917 to link Fredericksburg to the San Antonio and Aransas Pass Railroad. After falling into disuse in the 1940s, the area was turned into a state park; summering Mexican free-tailed bats took roost in the old tunnel.

I arrive around 7 p.m. and make my way to the viewing area just in time for the evening show. Three million bats stream out of the cave entrance in a counterclockwise wave of mammalian fluttering. “The bats circle around a few times to get elevation to get above the trees, and it looks like a tornado of bats,” says park superintendent Nyta Brown. “I never get tired of it.” Each bat eats its weight in insects each night.

Fredericksburg was first settled in 1846, the second colony founded under the direction of the Adelsverein, the Society for the Protection of German Immigrants in Texas. Unlike the freethinkers, the settlers of Fredericksburg were religious—evangelical Protestants, Lutherans, Methodists and Catholics. Each was given a parcel of farmland and a lot in town where many built “Sunday houses” near their house of worship.

Fort Martin Scott on the southeast edge of Fredericksburg was the first U.S. Army post on the Texas frontier, built in 1848. The town had negotiated a treaty with the Comanche by 1847, and soldiers at the fort were the first line of defense.

I wander among well-preserved remnants of the fort on a “living history” weekend. The tents of re-enactors and educators line the circle track, and classes of fourth- and seventh-grade Texas history students visit the encampments of Native Americans, soldiers and other period actors.

In one corner, Ray Hernandez, aka Chief Broken Eagle of the Tonkawa tribe, has set up a teepee and shows family heirlooms to wide-eyed children. Rita Rice, the living history coordinator, appears in the officer’s quarters in 1890s period dress. She walks students and adults through the two-room structure, pointing out features of frontier living. “I love seeing the kids in awe when I describe what people lived like back then,” she says.

On the lawn just outside the fort, Doug Baum is tending his camels, Richard and Jadid. Curious groups gather to take way. Just east of the dam and Inks Bridge, the park has become a civic art project of rock stacking.

Resident Belinda Morgan started the Llano Earth Art Fest to bring attention to Llano’s natural resources. The 2015 fest created the first World Rock Stacking Championship. The spring-time festival leaves stacks of rocks, called cairns, along the riverfront, inspiring others to contribute their own stack.

An ornate sandcastle grabs my attention as I pull into the parking lot. Then an 8-foot-tall dirt armadillo with a saddle on its back emerges from the bridge abutment. I pick my way down its back emerges from the bridge abutment. I pick my way down the granite boulders toward the water as rock cairns take over the landscape. Arches of rock defy gravity and rival the steel bridge over the river. On hot days, people create their stacks along the shoreline while standing in the cool water. This weekday, I see few visitors, and the park feels like an archaeological mystery created just for me.

Before I head back to the car, I try my hand at creating a stack, collecting medium-sized stones around my feet. Daily stress melts away, and my whole world joyously focuses on the fulcrum between rocks. Delightful.

North of Llano, I turn off Highway 16 at Cherokee and follow country roads to Colorado Bend State Park for a glimpse of Gorman Falls, a treasure of the Hill Country. The day is sunny but cool, and I head straight to the trailhead. Signs remind hikers to bring water and sunscreen, even though it’s only 1.4 miles to the falls. A few minutes on the trail helps me imagine an ill-prepared summertime hike.

The trail is easy but rocky, and it takes my full attention to keep my ankles true. After more than a mile, I come to a steep vertical descent down slick rock (thank goodness for handrails) to the hidden fairy pools of the travertine falls. Verdant green mosses drip water into clear cascading basins. The temperature here is 10–15 degrees cooler than the bright, open flats above, and I bask in wafts of misty breeze coming off the face of the cliff. A few feet from the falls, the titular bend in the Colorado River provides a place to cool yourself and your dog before heading back up the trail.

Now the incline of the trail feels more pronounced. I stop to catch my breath and admire the blooming cactus and try to listen for birdcalls coming from nearby trees. As I head for the parking lot, I pass hikers on their way down, watching their steps, raising their hands against the midday sun and reaching for their water bottles. I smile the secret smile of having seen the hidden splendor, knowing it was worth the struggle.

pictures and ask why in the world there are camels in Texas.

Baum explains that in 1857, U.S. Secretary of War Jefferson Davis directed the importation of 34 camels from Egypt to establish a camel corps based in Camp Verde. The animals quickly proved their worth by carrying twice the usual load of survey teams and mail-carrying ventures.

The Civil War interrupted and ultimately doomed the camel experiment, but Baum keeps the curious story alive with this Texas Camel Corps. “I fell in love with the camels and had to get a few of my own.” He now leads camel tours through West Texas.

Frontier Texas

Where the West—and the Texas Forts Trail—begins

BY CHARLES LOHRMANN

This herd of eight 1,000-pound steel buffaloes turns in the wind above Abilene's Frontier Texas.

Frontier Texas recreates a historic fort. Architect Larry Good explained that when he and architect Bryce Weigand started on the project, they drew inspiration from the historic sites. "We visited Fort Richardson, Fort Belknap, Fort Phantom Hill, Fort Griffin, Fort Chadbourne and Fort McKavett.

"The sculptural chimneys that lead you up to the front door of Frontier Texas are based on the chimneys at Fort Phantom Hill," Good says. "The chimneys are the only things left there."

Fort Phantom Hill sits about 15 miles north of Frontier Texas, so it can be the first stop on your Forts Trail adventure.

Fort Griffin is about 50 miles northeast of Fort Phantom Hill, and that drive offers the combination of the partially restored fort and a recreation of the historic town of Fort Griffin. This notoriously rough village included the Beehive Saloon, where Pat Garrett once tended bar. One of the holographic "spirit guides" in Frontier Texas plays the part of Garrett and retells the story of the night he shot Billy the Kid. Between the restored fort and the town, you'll find a historic marker designating the site where Gen. Robert E. Lee met with Comanche leaders.

The historic sites, now mostly in ruins, can create a ghostly sense of the frontier experience. Some personal accounts say that contemporary visitors hear mysterious voices, the sounds of horses' hooves or the jingle of spurs. Usually, the sounds more closely resemble the whisper of wind in the trees.

Back at Frontier Texas, museum director Jeff Salmon says that most visitors are those traveling from east to west, and the Abilene area is where they first see iconic Texas sights. "We try to remain true to the story and still provide entertainment—make an emotional connection," he says. "We honor the past as best we can."

Charles Lohrmann is the Texas Co-op Power editor.

Among the most popular Hill Country destinations are towns defined by an ethnic history, such as the German heritage of Fredericksburg, Boerne and other picturesque destinations (see Page 8). Another option for exploring the Hill Country is to embark on a tour at the northern reach of the region, at Abilene's Frontier Texas, and follow a stretch of the Texas Forts Trail. You don't need to visit all nine historic sites to gain a sense of the intertwined narratives of 19th century settlers, Native Americans, buffalo hunters and adventurers.

On my own foray to Frontier Texas, the last thing I expected was a herd of flying buffalo. But that is what I found when I stopped at this starting point of the 650-mile heritage trail that wanders through 29 counties. These eight steel bison weigh about 1,000 pounds each (400 pounds fewer than the flesh-and-blood version), run in place at the top of their 35-foot posts and turn so that their noses are always into the wind. "It's the world's largest wind vane," says H.C. Zachry, the Abilene artist and advertising executive who designed the flying creatures, "265 feet from one end to the other."

He enthusiastically describes the engineering marvels nosing into the wind then explains that a tour of the museum inside features stories delivered by holographic characters developed to capture historic personalities and interconnected narratives. "We focused on the period between 1780 to 1880," Zachary says, "because after 1880, the railroad came through Abilene, and that changed the frontier completely."

Understanding How Your Appliances Use Energy

Some appliances also will have an Energy Star label. This sticker indicates an appliance is substantially more efficient than the minimum standard. Your greatest energy savings opportunities can come from replacing an old appliance with an Energy Star-rated appliance. Removing a refrigerator that's 20 years old and replacing it with a new Energy Star model can lower its electricity costs by 75 percent.

In some cases, the way an appliance is configured also can make a significant difference. For example, the most efficient refrigerator models have the fridge compartment stacked on top of the freezer. All 36 of the most efficient clothes washers of 2018 were front-load models.

Consider how much you use the appliance, too. The more you use the appliance, the greater your savings from choosing a more efficient model. If you use the appliance less or have a small household, you may get by with a smaller refrigerator or freezer, which will save money.

IF SOME OF YOUR APPLIANCES ARE GETTING OLD AND WILL NEED to be replaced soon, it's time to do some homework. Your appliance choices can have a significant impact on your electric bill.

Your energy use varies month to month, so it can be difficult to see the difference any one appliance makes. Instead, it's best to think about how an appliance uses energy over its lifetime. Think about upfront and lifetime energy costs.

In a Consumer Reports test, the most efficient refrigerator used $68 less in electricity per year than the least efficient model. Compound that difference over a decade or two, and the lifetime energy savings could be greater than the upfront cost. All it takes to get the best appliance for your needs is some research.

Appliances use less energy, on average, than home heating and cooling equipment but still can use several hundred dollars' worth each year. That dollar amount depends on factors like the model, how often it's used, the settings you use and even the time of day it's most used.

Over the past few decades, new appliances have become more energy efficient, driven partly by government standards. These requirements, created by the U.S. Department of Energy, save consumers more than $60 billion each year by requiring appliances to include an EnergyGuide label that shows estimated energy use and operating costs per year. These estimates help you compare models and calculate initial costs against long-term savings.

How you operate appliances also can make a difference. Here are some easy ways to save:

Refrigerator/Freezer

- ▶ Set your refrigerator at 35–38 degrees and your freezer at zero.
- ▶ Make sure there is adequate airflow between your home's wall and the back of the unit.
- ▶ Keep the refrigerator relatively full when possible.
- ▶ Replace the seals around the doors if they appear to be leaking air.

Stove/Oven

- ▶ Use the burner size that best matches the pan.
- ▶ Use smaller appliances like a microwave or slow cooker instead of the oven when possible.

Dishwasher

- ▶ Use the most energy-efficient and shortest setting that gets your dishes clean.
- ▶ Air dry rather than using the heated dry function.
- ▶ Wait until the dishwasher is full before running it.

Make the most out of your appliance energy use with a little research before buying a new model and a few easy adjustments to the way you use them.

Go Back to School With Energy Savings

THE KIDS HAVE NEW BACKPACKS, NEW bedtimes, new routines and new homework every night. Heading back to school has kids using a lot more energy—and not just their own.

They need energy to power back-to-school devices, including the computers they use to type up their papers and the lights they shine late into the evening.

Here are some environmentally friendly and energy-saving back-to-school tips:

- ▶ Teach your children how to put the computer into sleep mode when they are finished using it, even if they plan on returning later. Electronics in sleep mode use about 80 percent less electricity than they do on full power.

- ▶ In the market for a new computer? Choose a model with an Energy Star rating, which will use 70 percent less electricity than those without it.

- ▶ Desk lamps create a productive work environment without wasting excess light. Replace incandescent light-bulbs in lamps with LED bulbs.

- ▶ Do a thorough inventory of school supplies before heading to the store to buy more. You may find that you need less than you think. When you buy, choose discounted bulk packages.

- ▶ Use lunch boxes instead of paper bags to save money and reduce waste.

Plan Your Fire Escape Strategy

INSTALLING SMOKE AND CARBON MONOXIDE DETECTORS ON EVERY FLOOR OF YOUR home—and replacing their batteries twice a year—is an important first step to keeping your family safe in the rare case of an electrical or other fire.

But when that unexpected alarm sounds, your children may panic.

Before an emergency strikes, prepare your kids—and yourself—to respond calmly and sensibly. The best way to do that is to plan for what everyone should do and where they should go in case of a fire.

Here's how to get started:

- ▶ Draw a map of your house's floor plan and outline the best escape route. Teach your children what to do if a doorway is blocked by fire. Create an alternate route, especially from each child's room or from areas of the house without easy access to the outdoors.

- ▶ Agree on a meeting place outside the house so your family will immediately know when everyone is safe.

- ▶ You can teach kids the familiar fire safety drill, "Stop, drop and roll," but words alone won't keep them safe. Have children act out the moves. Then do a practice run-through of your escape routes and demonstrate to children how they should crawl and stay low to the ground to prevent smoke inhalation.

- ▶ If you have a fire extinguisher in the house, show older children how to use it. Still, remind them that their safest action is to escape as quickly as possible.

- ▶ Keep a cellphone in a visible and easily accessible place in case of emergencies. That way, you can get out of the house then call 911.

- ▶ Don't waste time grabbing documents or keepsakes when there's a fire. Keep important and irreplaceable items such as birth certificates and photos in a fire-proof box or a safe-deposit box at the bank.

Trying To Be Cool

For generations, escaping the brutal Texas heat was hardly a breeze

BY MIKE COX

THOSE NEVER LULLED INTO AN AFTER-noon nap by the hum of an oscillating fan may not realize that Texans have not always been able to cool off by simply adjusting a thermostat.

During the Truman administration, the only screens most people spent any time in front of were the ones looming above the stage in a darkened movie theater. Long before telephones got smart and when only birds tweeted, air conditioning was not common. In fact, movie theaters and department stores were among the few places of refuge that offered refrigerated air. Well into the 1960s, even public schools operated sans AC.

Nor did cars come from Detroit with what used to be called “factory air.” Back then, keeping cool on the road meant driving with the windows down. On a trip to El Paso with my grandparents when I was barely old enough to look out the window, my grandmother tried to keep me cool by dipping a cloth into a metal ice chest in the back seat then having me hold that around my wrist.

These days, Texas is down to two generations who remember times before air conditioning. Members of the Greatest Generation, the folks who fought in and lived through World War II, spent much of their lives trying to stay cool as best they could before mechanically chilled air became common. Their kids, Baby Boomers, got only a taste of what life was like in the summer without AC, but it was enough to make memories.

Being in a house without air conditioning in hot weather certainly could be uncomfortable, but sitting in a room where the thermostat is set at 71 degrees, it’s possible to remember the lazy, hazy, crazy days of summers past with a hint of nostalgia.

My grandparents—born before 1900—knew only two summertime temperature settings for most of their lives: the heat of the day and the cool of the evening.

“I don’t want you playing outside in the heat of the day,” my grandmother would declare back in the 1950s. “Wait until the cool of the evening.”

The heat of the day needed to be spent in close proximity to a fan, the manufacturing of which certainly would not seem like a growth industry today. But back then, open windows and fans were just about the only way to keep cool unless you spent a lot of time in a swimming pool. Of course, some homes did have evaporative air conditioners, known as swamp coolers, that would blow cool air if the humidity was low enough. Still, most Texans got by with natural and man-made breeze.

An afternoon rain shower could cool things off in the heat of the day, but during the drought of the early 1950s, that didn’t happen often. When it did, Texans considered it a big deal. As long as lightning wasn’t in the area, children in bathing suits or sometimes only their birthday suits ran in the rain and gleefully splashed in water coursing along gutters and borrow ditches.

But, ah, the cool of the evening.

As the sun sank and shadows lengthened, the mercury in the thermometer slowly receded and people emerged from their houses. However, “cool” was a relative term. Even so, evening temperatures in the low 90s or into the 80s and sometimes even the high 70s trumped 100-plus degree afternoons, especially with a little wind out of the south.

In the early days of television, on some cool evenings, one of our neighbors would turn their TV set around to face outward from the picture window in their living room so neighbors could sit outside on metal lawn chairs, watching the black-and-white screen. The audio drifted out through the screen door.

Most of the time during the cool of the evening, people sat on their front lawns or porches and just talked. They also might eat a bowl of homemade peach ice cream and wash it down with a glass of iced tea, but mostly they just visited, enjoying the drop in temperature, however modest. While the grown-ups talked, kids clutching Mason jars with holes punched in the lids ran after fireflies, better known as lightning bugs.

In that long-ago time, when we went to bed, we fell asleep with the windows open, relaxed by the sounds of the night. The gentle rustling of the big cottonwood tree in the front yard made a peaceful white noise decades before I ever heard the term. The buzz of June bugs and the chirping of crickets produced a lot more noise than passing cars.

All too soon, in a rhythm that has survived the advent of air conditioning, the cool of the evening once again warmed into the heat of the day.

Trees That Speak

Marked trees that revealed resources to nomadic Comanche still stand

EXCERPT BY JIMMY W. ARTERBERRY

THE USE OF TREES TO IDENTIFY A LOCATION has always been important in the traditional life of the Comanche. In days of old, our ancestors would mark a tree, or use a tree that was naturally marked and stood out on the landscape, to identify a resource. The tree itself was a resource and could be used to identify various other resources, such as food, medicine, water, a path, a burial site or a meeting place. More often than not, these trees marked more than a single resource.

For nomadic people, it was important to remember locations where activities took place and that, in the oral tradition, held significant information about cultural life. These types of trees are still important and in use today. We utilize the trees within the landscape as a means of following the paths of our ancestors' teachings and connecting ourselves to the country we know as Numu Soko (the Comanche phrase for "Comanche Land"). We still stop to gather medicines and foods, as well as to camp, or follow various paths that lead us to our destinations, often by the utilization of these trees. Essentially these historic resources are just as significant today as in yesteryear, for we are Comanche—yesterday, today and tomorrow.

I remember traveling around Comanche country as a child with my grandparents and elders to collect certain resources. There were specific locations where trees offered food or medicine for collection, as well as locations where trees were used for identifying other important occurrences or places. For example, such a tree stood north of our old home place. It was an old, unusual-looking tree that marked the place where my siblings, cousins, friends and I would gather to play. It was a place where the kids could be found at any time of the day—easily within calling distance in the advent of an important announcement or need. There was no distinction among seasons and its use. It was the kind of tree that stood out in the landscape, calling your attention, begging you to come closer and directing your activities. Whether it was with or without leaves, we spent hours in and beneath that tree, discovering nature and ourselves. It was a guide of sorts, and a friend as well, who seemed to listen to our stories and protect us from ourselves. And although we children used it as a means of entertainment, adults took advantage of the medicine and materials it offered. To us it was a gentle giant who grew as we did, yet stood still in time. Simply put, it was a marker tree that provided a variety of services.

There was also an area along the creek where certain trees stood tall above the rest and yet seemed hidden in the midst of the grove. Those trees brought great joy to our household when the fruit was added to tah ah (the Comanche word for "pounded or jerked meat"). Various nuts and sometimes fruit were added to naturally sweeten the meat as it was pounded or added to other foods. In autumn, these trees would provide fruit for the taking, and usually the family and extended community would gather to collect their offerings. As I reflect upon my early years among my elders, these are only a few of the many examples of support these important trees gave us. What might seem trivial or mundane was, in actuality, a long tradition where identifying, marking and utilizing a specific tree was important in Comanche life.

So, today we acknowledge that past and look toward the future as we continue to identify, mark, and utilize Comanche Marker Trees.

In 1997, a group of Comanche visited the greater Dallas area to see firsthand a piapu nakutabai huupi (Comanche words for “big pecan tree”) and met with our good friends Linda Pelon, Steve Houser and the Dallas Historic Tree Coalition, all of whom were instrumental in recognizing these magnificent trees. From that visit, the first Comanche Marker Tree was formally recognized via a tribal proclamation. As a result of that visit and numerous other meetings over the years to discuss the varying aspects of marker trees and Comanche cultural heritage, as well as share research data and plan trips to see potential trees, it was decided that the time was at hand to produce a book describing this aspect of Comanche culture. The book is the result of many years and miles of research-gathering among a host of friends with a shared interest in historic preservation, emphasizing Comanche Marker Trees.

Meet the future of personal transportation.

More and more Americans are reaching the age where mobility is an everyday issue. Whether from an injury or from the everyday aches and pains that come from getting older—getting around isn't as easy as it used to be.

You may have tried a power chair or a scooter. The Zinger is NOT a power chair or a scooter! The Zinger is quick and nimble, yet it is not prone to tipping like many scooters. Best of all, it weighs only 47.2 pounds and folds and unfolds with ease so you can take it almost anywhere, providing you with independence and freedom.

Years of work by innovative engineers have resulted in a mobility device that's truly unique. They created a battery that provides powerful energy at a fraction of the weight of most batteries. The Zinger features two steering levers, one on either side of the seat. The user pushes both levers down to go forward, pulls them both up to brake, and pushes one while pulling the other to turn to either side. This enables great mobility, the ability to turn on a dime and to pull right up to tables or desks. The controls are right on the steering arm so it's simple to operate, and its exclusive footrest swings out of the way when you stand up or sit down. With its rugged yet lightweight aluminum frame, the Zinger is sturdy and durable yet lightweight and comfortable! What's more, it easily folds up for storage in a car seat or trunk— you can even gate-check it at the airport like a stroller. Think about it, you can take your Zinger almost anywhere, so you don't have to let mobility issues rule your life. It folds in

Clogged, Backed—up Septic System...Can anything Restore It?

DEAR DARRYL: My home is about 10 years old, and so is my septic system. I have always taken pride in keeping my home and property in top shape. In fact, my neighbors and I are always kidding each other about who keeps their home and yard nicest. Lately, however, I have had a horrible smell in my yard, and also in one of my bathrooms, coming from the shower drain. My grass is muddy and all the drains in my home are very slow.

Dear
Darryl

My wife is on my back to make the bathroom stop smelling and as you can imagine, my neighbors are having a field day, kidding me about the mud pit and sewage stench in my yard. It's humiliating. I called a plumber buddy of mine, who recommended pumping (and maybe even replacing) my septic system. But at the potential cost of thousands of dollars, I hate to explore that option.

I tried the store bought, so called, Septic treatments out there, and they did Nothing to clear up my problem. Is there anything on the market I can pour or flush into my system that will restore it to normal, and keep it maintained?

Clogged and Smelly – Corpus Christi, TX

DEAR CLOGGED AND SMELLY: As a reader of my column, I am sure you are aware that I have a great deal of experience in this particular field. You will be glad to know that there IS a septic solution that will solve your back-up and effectively restore your entire system from interior piping throughout the septic system and even unclog the drain field as well. SeptiCleanse® Shock and Maintenance Programs deliver your system the fast active bacteria and enzymes needed to liquefy solid waste and free the clogs causing your back-up.

This fast-acting bacteria multiplies within minutes of application and is specifically designed to withstand many of today's anti-bacterial cleaners, soaps and detergents. It comes in dissolvable plastic packs, that you just flush down your toilets. It's so cool. Plus, they actually Guarantee that it restores ANY system, no matter how bad the problem is.

SeptiCleanse® Shock and Maintenance Programs are designed to work on any septic system regardless of design or age. From modern day systems to sand mounds, and systems installed generations ago, I have personally seen SeptiCleanse unclog and restore these systems in a matter of weeks. I highly recommend that you try it before spending any money on repairs. SeptiCleanse products are available online at www.septicleanse.com or you can order or learn more by calling toll free at 1-888-899-8345. If you use the promo code "TXS5", you can get a free shock treatment, added to your order, which normally costs $169. So, make sure you use that code when you call or buy online.

Marvels of Horsepower

Blanco's Buggy Barn Museum takes a turn into the 19th century

BY MARTHA DEERING

THE MUFFLED CADENCE OF TROTTING horses drifts in the Hill Country breeze when I arrive at the Buggy Barn Museum to enjoy a version of Old West atmosphere. Proprietor Dennis Moore, in his battered hat and dusty boots, could have stepped straight out of a classic Western. In fact, on the day I visit the museum, Moore had just returned from working on a film set in Austin.

The 10-acre site on the northern edge of Blanco, on U.S. 281, features nary a nod to modern times. The museum's office, just inside the red gates, recalls the 19th century. It occupies a rustic cabin with a wooden porch and an inviting rocking chair. Longhorn cattle contentedly ruminate in the shade of trees near the highway, and a line of buggies and wagons is visible outside the museum's red door.

The 140-plus horse-drawn vehicles in the museum provide a hands-on history of travel from the early 1860s to about 1900. Each buggy, carriage, hearse and wagon embodies its own story, and Moore demonstrates knowledge of every nuance.

Moore's fixation began in childhood when his father bought a pony and cart for him and his brother. Serious collecting over the past 18 years has filled the large museum and expanded onto the surrounding grounds. From a massive Conestoga wagon to a light and classy Studebaker surrey with red fringe on top, the vehicles served the needs of a range of 19th-century travelers.

Moore is a fifth-generation Blanco resident who has encouraged his wife, children and extended family members to take an interest in the collection. His wife's lifelong love of horses made her easy to convince. "It wouldn't be nearly as much fun without the family involved," Moore says. "My grandchildren, ages 7 and 11, love to give tours."

The Buggy Barn Museum provides an educational opportunity to step back into the days of horse-drawn travel. Expansion of the collection and preservation of the history of horse-drawn transportation are the museum's primary goals. Moore uses the vehicles in parades and re-enactments, but along the way, word spread to film companies that horse-drawn vehicles could be rented from the Buggy Barn along with horses to pull them and drivers to handle the reins. In recent years, the movie business has kept Moore busy. Between 30 and 40 of his vehicles were used in the 2010 remake of True Grit.

Along with buggies and wagons, the museum houses a collection of vintage saddles, boots, guns and other memorabilia important for dressing a film set. Many of the museum's artifacts graced the screen in the recent Western series The Son. Moore also furnished horses and wagons for There Will Be Blood, filmed in Marfa with actor Daniel Day-Lewis.

Trailers with raised ceilings haul the horses, vehicles and equipment to a film's location. Moore has 20 horses, two donkeys and a black German shepherd named Kira who also is a movie star. With his grizzled beard and mustache, Moore looks right at home driving a team in a Western movie. In his most recent movie venture, Support the Girls (not a Western), he held the title of transportation coordinator, working all week in Austin and returning to Blanco on weekends.

With his encyclopedic knowledge of the Old West, Moore explains exactly how metal foot warmers burned coal to keep passengers from arriving at their destinations with frozen feet. He can point out the differences between a phaeton and a brougham and show visitors the tube that made it possible for those inside to talk to the driver. This is a man who lives and breathes the Old West—although he has been known to put a set of small wheels under a bright red sleigh and drive Santa in the Blanco Christmas Parade.

Martha Deering, a member of Heart of Texas EC, lives near McGregor. Her recent book, Elephant Dreams, is available at Amazon and Barnes and Noble.

All Hail the Cookie Jar

WHILE I'VE NEVER MET A COOKIE I didn't like, I like oatmeal cookies more than most. The best kinds are a comforting and welcome treat after school or midafternoon, when you need a boost. Whole grains and dried fruit even make them feel somewhat virtuous—no shame in eating one for breakfast, right? A few details give this recipe (slightly adapted from Food 52's website) extraordinary flavor and texture. First, the butter is browned before mixing, which gives the cookies a rich, nutty flavor. Second, the raisins are puréed before they're incorporated into the dough, creating a moist, chewy texture. Rolling the cookies in sugar before baking gives a delightfully crunchy coating.

PAULA DISBROWE, FOOD EDITOR

Brown Butter Oatmeal Raisin Cookies

- 2 cups dark raisins
- 2 cups flour, divided use
- 1 cup (2 sticks) unsalted butter
- 1 cup light brown sugar
- 1 cup dark brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 2 eggs
- 2 cups old-fashioned rolled oats
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1¼ teaspoons kosher salt
- ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon espresso powder
- Sugar or turbinado sugar, for rolling (optional)

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Line two rimmed baking sheets with parchment.

2. Toss the raisins with ¼ cup flour. Place them in a food processor and pulse 20–30 seconds, until the raisins form a very thick paste and come together in a ball.

3. Heat the butter in a skillet over medium heat, watching it closely. When you see the bottom of the pan

All Hail the Cookie Jar

THIS MONTH'S RECIPE CONTEST WINNER

HEATHER BRADFORD | PEDERNALES EC

The fragrant oil of bergamot, a variety of orange grown in Italy and France, gives Earl Grey tea its distinctive aroma. That same flavor (and a generous amount of lemon zest) perfumes these delicate sugar cookies.

To increase the citrus flavor, drizzle the cooled cookies with lemon glaze.

Earl Grey Lemon Cookies

DOUGH

- 4½ cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon kosher salt
- 2 individual bags Earl Grey tea (or 2 tablespoons loose leaf tea), ground
- 1 cup sugar
- Finely grated zest of 2 lemons
- 1¼ cups (2½ sticks) unsalted butter, softened
- 1 egg
- 1 tablespoon vanilla extract
- ½ cup buttermilk, divided use
- Powdered sugar, for rolling dough

LEMON GLAZE

- 2 cups powdered sugar, sifted
- ⅓ cup freshly squeezed lemon juice

1. DOUGH: Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Line two rimmed baking sheets with parchment.
2. In a medium bowl, whisk together the flour, baking powder, salt and loose tea leaves until combined.

3. Combine the sugar and lemon zest in a standing mixer bowl fitted with a paddle attachment. Mix the sugar and zest on low speed until the mixture is very aromatic and resembles wet sand. Add the butter and beat on medium-high speed for 3 minutes or until light and fluffy. Add the egg, vanilla and ¼ cup buttermilk, and mix on low speed until combined.

4. Add 2½ cups of the flour mixture to the bowl and mix slowly, until just combined. Stir in remaining buttermilk, then add the remaining flour mixture and process just until the dry ingredients are absorbed. The dough should be smooth and supple (if too sticky, add an additional ¼ cup flour).

5. Wrap the dough in plastic wrap and chill at least 30 minutes, or up to 2 days in advance (if you chill the dough for an extended time, remove it from the fridge 30 minutes before rolling out the cookies, to soften).

6. Dust a work surface with powdered sugar, then roll out the dough ¼ inch thick. Cut the cookies into rounds (or any shape desired) and use a thin spatula to transfer them to the prepared baking sheet.

7. Bake the cookies 10–12 minutes, until the edges start to turn golden. Transfer cookies to a wire rack to cool completely.

8. LEMON GLAZE: Whisk together ingredients until the mixture is smooth. Use a spoon, fork or pastry bag with a small tip to glaze the cookies. Store in an airtight container up to 1 week. ▶ Makes about 3 dozen cookies.

COOK'S TIP To grind the tea, place it in a sealable plastic bag and use a rolling pin to break down the leaves.

becoming browned, remove from heat and set aside.

4. Combine the sugars, vanilla and browned butter in the bowl of a standing mixer fitted with a paddle attachment and mix on medium speed about 5 minutes. Add the eggs one at a time and continue to mix on medium speed. When the mixture pulls together into an even texture, add the raisin paste and mix until thoroughly combined.

5. In a separate bowl, combine the remaining flour, oats, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and espresso powder. Mix the dry ingredients into the wet mixture in two additions, until there is no flour visible.

6. Using a soup spoon and your hands, roll the dough into rounds about the size of a Ping-Pong ball. Roll the balls of dough in a dish of sugar and place them on the prepared baking sheet, about 2 inches apart. Using the flat part of your palm, flatten each dough ball slightly to allow for even baking.

7. Bake 12–15 minutes, until cookies just begin to turn golden brown and are crinkly on top. Another good way of testing is to lift a corner of the cookie—if it bends slightly and re-forms when let go, they are ready. Allow to cool 5 minutes on the baking sheet before transferring cookies to a wire rack to cool completely. Store in an airtight container up to 10 days. ▶ Makes about 40 cookies.

Pecan Thin Crisps

GAYLYN HERRO | BRYAN TEXAS UTILITIES

These wonderful “make ahead and bake later” cookies have been a treasured family recipe since 1959, when Herro’s parents, Emma Jean and Keith Jaeger, were married. Traditionally, the cookies were prepared and frozen the week after Thanksgiving (pecan season) then baked in mid-December for Christmas gifts for family members, friends and the community. This recipe also can be cut in half to make fewer cookies if preferred.

- 2 cups (4 sticks) butter, softened
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

IF YOUR RECIPE IS FEATURED,
YOU'LL WIN A TCP APRON!

$100 Recipe Contest

February’s recipe contest theme is Cozy Casseroles, comforting, one-pan meals that are baked until bubbly and feed the entire family. The deadline is September 10.

ENTER ONLINE at TexasCoopPower.com/contests; MAIL to 1122 Colorado St., 24th Floor, Austin, TX 78701; FAX to (512) 763-3401. Include your name, address and phone number, plus your co-op and the name of the contest you are entering.

- 4 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 3 cups finely chopped pecans

1. Place the butter in the bowl of a stand-ing mixer fitted with a paddle attachment and beat until smooth. Gradually add the sugars and beat on medium-high speed until the mixture is light and fluffy. Add the eggs and vanilla; mix well.

2. Sift together the flour, baking soda and salt, then gradually add the dry ingredi-ents to the butter mixture, beating well after each addition. Add the pecans and stir until just combined. Do not overmix the dough.

3. Transfer the cookie dough to a work surface and divide into six equal por-tions then refrigerate them on a plate 5–10 minutes (chilling makes the dough easier to work with). Prepare six 6- to 8-inch rectangles of waxed paper or alu-minum foil, then place a chilled dough portion in the center of each wrapper sheet and shape it into a roll approximately 1¾ inches in diameter, wrapping tightly, then freeze until firm (usually overnight). The cookie rolls will main-tain freshness in the freezer for more than 6 months.

4. When you're ready to bake, preheat oven to 375 degrees. Slice the frozen dough with a sharp knife in approxi-mately ¼-inch sections then place on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake 10–12 minutes until lightly browned. Remove cookies to cooling rack. ▶ Makes about 18 dozen cookies.

COOK'S TIP For the best results, slice and bake these cookies when the dough is still frozen. A food processor makes quick work of chopping the pecans. Simply pulse them into a coarse mixture. If you plan on freezing the cookies for longer than a week, wrap them in plastic wrap or waxed paper and an additional layer of alu-minum foil.

WEB EXTRAS ▶ Read this story on our web-site to see a recipe for Mexican Pepper Cookies from a Central Texas EC member.

Bake Better Cookies

LINE BAKING SHEETS with parchment paper or a Silpat baking liner for easier cleanup.

SOFTENED BUTTER should be at room temperature or slightly cool to the touch—but not melted. (That will yield an entirely different texture in the baked cookie.)

CREAMING BUTTER and sugar until “light and fluffy” typically takes 3–5 minutes; it’s ready when it no longer feels grainy between your fingertips. The process creates tiny air bubbles that give the dough structure and help the cookies rise in the oven.

USING A HEAVY HAND with flour will create tougher cookies. To measure it accurately, spoon it lightly into a dry measuring cup and then level the cup off with a knife. Resist scooping the cup into the flour or tapping the measuring cup with a knife, this will make the measure too dense and heavy.

NUTS AND DRIED FRUIT are interchange-able; feel free to swap in your favorite flavors. —PD

Houston, We Have a Road Trip

Bay Area Houston offers a glimpse at Mars and a historic battleground

BY MELISSA GASKILL

A CLUSTER OF COMMUNITIES ON THE southeast side of Houston has played a major role in space exploration, from missions to the moon almost 50 years ago to space shuttle flights and research aboard the International Space Station. Space Center Houston, the official visitor center of NASA's Johnson Space Center, chronicles the out-of-this-world feats in interactive exhibits, full-scale displays, spacecraft and more than 400 artifacts.

My favorites include one of the actual Boeing 747s that ferried space shuttles across Earth and a full-size replica of the shuttle Independence, along with the chance to touch Mars and the moon in one morning—a meteorite from the former and one of 840 pounds of rocks brought back from the latter. I also geek out on exhibits on the current weather on Mars (spoiler alert: It's cold!), how astronauts sleep on the space station, and the hole that a speck traveling at 15,200 mph would make in a spaceship.

Two theaters show films, including Human Destiny, a history of NASA missions with plenty of archival footage. Mission Mars uses interactive exhibits, films, and scale models of spacecraft and rockets to detail the planned journey to this far-away planet. Fridays and Saturdays, visitors with reservations can share lunch with an astronaut and have their pictures taken as souvenirs.

Ninety-minute tram tours include historic mission control facilities for Apollo and the shuttles and working buildings in Johnson Space Center. A five-hour Level 9 guided VIP tour includes even more working buildings, plus lunch in the space center cafeteria where multiple astronauts dine and next-day admission to Space Center Houston. While many cities boast science museums or even space centers, this one can't be beat for history and authenticity.

Folks in these parts take equal pride in their role in events further back in history, so I drive about 30 minutes to the San Jacinto Battleground State Historic Site. Here, in 1836, a ragtag band of Texians under Sam Houston defeated Gen. Antonio López de Santa Anna's Mexican army to win independence for the Republic of Texas. I take in the view from the 570-foot-tall San Jacinto Monument (taller than the Washington Monument, which is 555 feet tall) and browse historic exhibits and a wealth of artifacts in the museum at its base.

Across the 1,800-foot-long reflecting pond, the spot where Houston's men camped along Buffalo Bayou, rests Battleship Texas State Historic Site and its namesake vessel. Commissioned in 1914, it fought in both world wars, including the Atlantic and Pacific theaters in World War II. Visitors can wander the 573-foot-long ship, up onto the foremast, around decks and gun turrets that move, and through living quarters for a crew of 1,600, a maze of kitchens, doctor and dentist offices, and more.

As I leave the venerable old ship, modern-day craft pass on the waters of Buffalo Bayou, also known as the Houston Ship Channel, as do dolphins and birds, including roseate spoonbills and an osprey.

Experience flights of a different kind at Saloon Door Brewing, just off the NASA bypass, where a beer flight offers a nice wind-down from a full day's activities.

Friends who work at Johnson Space Center recommend waterside Boondoggle's Pizzeria & Pub. Diners sometimes spot astronauts at the next table, they tell me, and if not, there are plenty of them in photos on the walls. Boondoggle's offers more than 50 craft beers on tap, including the aptly named Rocket Fuel and Space Dust, plus gourmet pizzas from a wood-burning oven, sandwiches, burgers, salads and more.

Houston, our road trip has landed.
