ADVANCED HEARING AID TECHNOLOGY

For Only $199⁹⁹

"I was amazed! Sounds I hadn't heard in years came back to me!"

— Don W., Sherman, TX

How can a hearing aid that costs only $199⁹⁹ be every bit as good as one that sells for $2,400 or more?

The answer: Although tremendous strides have been made in Advanced Hearing Aid Technology, those cost reductions have not been passed on to you. Until now...

MDHearingAid® uses the same kind of Advanced Hearing Aid Technology incorporated into hearing aids that cost thousands more at a small fraction of the price.

Over 350,000 satisfied MDHearingAid
customers agree: High-quality,
FDA-registered hearing aids don't have to cost a fortune. The fact is, you don't need to spend thousands for a hearing aid. MDHearingAid is a medical-grade hearing aid offering sophistication and high performance, and works right out of the box with no time-consuming "adjustment" appointments. You can contact a licensed hearing specialist conveniently on-line or by phone — even after your purchase at no cost. No other company provides such extensive support. Now that you know...why pay more?

Can a Hearing Aid Delay or Prevent Alzheimer's and Dementia?

A study by the National Institute on Aging suggests older individuals with hearing loss are significantly more likely to develop Alzheimer's and dementia over time than those who retain their hearing. They suggest that an intervention — such as a hearing aid — could delay or prevent this by improving hearing!

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF OUR 45-DAY RISK-FREE TRIAL!

Hearing is believing and we invite you to try this nearly invisible hearing aid with no annoying whistling or background noise for yourself. If you are not completely satisfied with your MDHearingAid, return it within 45

Other Musical Greats

Chet Garner began by mentioning Willie Nelson, Janis Joplin, George Strait and Roy Orbison because they were born in small Texas towns [Wink's Spectacle, September 2019]. He missed the singer with by far the best voice that was born in a small Texas town—Johnny Mathis, from Gilmer. JOE E. AND SHARON MCINTYRE

Big Bend Beckons

The Window Trail is an easy hike that emanates from the Chisos Mountain Lodge and provides a truly wondrous view of the valley below. And to see Casa Grande Peak lit up at sunrise is a sight one never forgets. Thanks to E. Dan Klepper [Big Bend's Golden Triangle] and Joe Nick Patoski [Which Big Bend?] in September for their superb commentaries.

TIM O'NEIL | PAIGE BLUEBONNET EC

Definitely on my bucket list! I've been to Big Bend twice but never Fort Davis!

I enjoyed Which Big Bend?, but it needed some fact-checking. Big Bend National Park gets about 400,000

A Nod and a Wink

In 1954, I was a fourth grader in Odessa. On Saturday afternoons, my sister and I watched the only show on television, several hours of West Texas talent. Roy Orbison was on this show—if not every Saturday, close to it. We really didn't think at that time that he had talent [Wink's Spectacle, September 2019].

The next thing we knew, he is doing very well for himself. So much for the opinions of a 7- and 9-year-old.

Point of History

As a Texas history teacher for more than 30 years, I often use Texas Co-op Power articles as supplementary reading in my classroom. I was excited to see the story about Gail Borden but was disappointed it did not mention that he was one of the original 300 colonists brought by Stephen F. Austin—something your readers learned from their seventh grade teachers but probably have forgotten [Gail Borden's Follies, September 2019]. DONNA ENGLISH | HIGHLAND VILLAGE COSERV

Bush's Bailout

Any military pilot who read your Almanac item in Currents [September 2019] probably could correct the facts surrounding George H.W. Bush's being downed by anti-aircraft fire in 1944. Ejection seats didn't exist in 1944, so he actually went over the side (bailed out), hitting his head as he did so. WILLY CARROLL | KERRVILLE CENTRAL TEXAS EC

Sally the Mountain Lion

Fun in the Past Tense [August 2019] mentioned a mountain lion named Sally that a man from Pearsall had kept as a pet. That man was my father, Jack "Hoss" Keith.

The bigger mountain lion in the same museum is Charlie. During breeding, Charlie killed Sally. My father was well known in the Pearsall area as an avid cat hunter with his dogs. ALLEN KEITH | BOERNE BANDERA EC

BUTTING OUT

Only 14% of American adults smoke, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. That's an all-time low in the U.S.

Trying to kick the habit?

November 21 is the Great American Smokeout, an annual event since 1977 aimed at encouraging Americans to stop smoking.

HAPPENINGS

McAllen Holiday Parade

MCALLEN, the self-declared South Pole of Texas, kicks off the festive season with its HOLIDAY PARADE, which the city describes as the largest illuminated holiday and helium balloon parade in Texas.

The 1½-mile parade, DECEMBER 7, will feature more than 50 lighted floats, more than 30 inflatable character balloons and marching bands.

ALMANAC

50 YEARS AGO: Richard M.

Nixon became the first president to attend a regular-season NFL game while in office. Nixon sat in the stands at RFK Memorial Stadium in Washington, D.C., as the Dallas Cowboys beat the Washington Redskins 41-28 on November 16, 1969.

◀ LOOKING BACK AT SOCIETY THIS MONTH

IN THE 75 YEARS since Texas Co-op Power debuted in July 1944, folks like Audie Murphy and Walter Cronkite became household names, and Leonards Department Store and the National Women's Conference helped change society.

1940s

1944 Jackie Robinson, who in 1947 would become the first black player in major league baseball, is court-martialed for refusing to move to the back of a bus at Fort Hood.

1945 Audie Murphy of Kingston receives the Medal of Honor. He later becomes the most decorated U.S. soldier of World War II.

1950s

1955 Using the August 22, 1949, Life magazine cover of Panhandle rancher Clarence Hailey Long as its inspiration, Philip Morris creates the Marlboro Man, an advertising campaign that increased the brand's cigarette sales by 3,241%.

1958 Philanthropist Ima Hogg donates the Varner-Hogg Plantation to the state.

1960s

1960 Leonards Department Store in Fort Worth becomes the first major retailer in that city or Dallas to take down all segregationist signs and welcome African Americans.

1962 Walter Cronkite, raised in Houston, helps launch the CBS Evening News and serves as its news anchor until his retirement in 1981.

A Leader of Kind Strangers

IT'S HARD TO KEEP UP WITH ELLEN FULLER. "I'm a serial volunteer," she says, and her fast-paced conversation and exuberant attitude make it easy to believe she devotes boundless enthusiasm to any cause she might undertake.

These days, Fuller focuses her abundant energy on Wreaths Across America, a nationwide organization that places holiday wreaths on veterans' graves. In 2018, with Fuller as co-chair of the statewide effort, WAA collaborated with 674 groups to place 160,000 wreaths on almost one-third of veterans' graves across Texas, as featured in TCP in November 2018.

Fuller now serves as treasurer on WAA's national board.

"My dad passed in 2011," she says, "and he was buried in Arlington National Cemetery. I visited his grave in December 2011 and wondered what kind stranger had placed a wreath on his grave."

The kind stranger was a volunteer with Wreaths Across America, an effort started in 1992 when Worcester Wreath Company of Harrington, Maine, placed extra holiday wreaths to honor those buried at Arlington. That effort evolved into the Arlington Wreath Project and ultimately into Wreaths Across America.

If you're wondering what a holiday-focused organization does year-round, bear in mind that WAA's reach in Texas has grown 30%—from 86 cemeteries in 2017 to 112 in 2018 and more for 2019. Because wreath day in 2019 is December 14, Fuller and crew will not stop counting until the very last day. Their motto is, "Any vet. Anywhere."

Besides, as Fuller, a customer of Bryan Texas Utilities, says, "Any day is a good day to thank a veteran."

1970s

1971 The Lyndon Baines Johnson Library and Museum, which houses more than 45 million pages of historical documents, opens on the campus of the University of Texas at Austin.

1975 Gloria Dean Randle Scott of Houston becomes the first black president of the Girl Scouts of America.

1977 The National Women's Conference takes place in Houston.

1980s

1982 Molly Ivins begins writing columns at The Dallas Times Herald. In syndication, her columns appeared in 350 papers across the U.S.

1987 More than 700 music fans attend Austin's inaugural South by Southwest festival, which has evolved into a major annual tech, music and media event.

1990s

1990 Marguerite Ross Barnett becomes president of the University of Houston and the first black woman to lead a major American university.

1992 Gov. Ann Richards buys the first Texas Lottery ticket, a Lone Star Millions scratch-off, at an Austin feed store.

1993 West Texas A&M University in Canyon, which previously went under several different names, adopts its current name.

2000s

2012 Big Tex, the 52-foot-tall mechanical cowboy that towered over the State Fair of Texas for 60 years, catches fire and is destroyed. His replacement debuted the next year.

IN THE making

ARTISANS
SINGULAR
PASSION

THE MADE IN TEXAS moniker gets applied to so much more than boots, hats and Texas-shaped tchotchkes. I went in search of distinctive makers and found diverse artisans with deep thoughts about the act of creation. Whether fulfilling grand ambitions and pushing the limits of a craft or rendering spiritual communion and psychological healing, these Texans use their minds and hands to transform raw materials into objects of beauty and purpose.

This holiday season, let's remember to invest in our local makers. Here are a few from Co-op Country to get you started.

✕ THE CHARACTER OF LEATHER ✕

ODIN CLACK wandered into a leather store one day in 2012 and exited with $200 worth of goods and a new curiosity. He wondered if he could make a laptop sleeve from the leather and began tinkering at his dining room table. The graphic designer found a new challenge in leathercraft and was soon making wallets, belts and bags for family and friends.

“The thing I love about leather is that the way it looks to me is different from the way it will look in a year from now. How we use it affects the way it looks and feels,” Clack says. “Every dent and scratch tells a story.”

In 2018, Odin Leather Goods moved out of the family’s garage and into a workshop in Coppell, near the Tri-County Electric Cooperative service area. Odin and his wife, Rachelle, work with one shop assistant to fulfill orders for their wide range of products. “When people buy local, they know their dollars are going towards daycare and swimming lessons and supporting a local family,” Clack says. “It also trickles down because I buy my materials and hardware from other U.S. companies.”

✂ FORGED WITH HEART ✂

J. ALEX RUIZ has always loved making things with his hands. He spent his childhood sculpting and crafting historical replicas, which led him to study archaeology in college, where he discovered the tools and crafts of long ago.

A penchant for colonial-era ironwork brought him into a blacksmith shop, where he made functional ironworking tools like bladesmithing tongs, hammers and knives.

As a maker, Ruiz feels a deep kinship to those historic people we learn about through artifacts. “When I go to museums and look at historical weapons or ironwork, I like to see the flaws,” he says. “As someone who actually makes these things, I can spot if something has been broken and fixed.”

Ruiz, a member of Karnes Electric Cooperative, began teaching and performing demonstrations around Texas and earned a spot on the History Channel’s Forged in Fire competition, where he won $10,000 for a medieval horseman’s battle axe. Volundr Forge is Ruiz’s business that he runs part time from his home in Adkins. It’s not uncommon for his shop to reach 120 degrees, and there is a 16-week backlog for his custom knives. “My market is the everyday guy that wants something handmade that’s going to last a lifetime,” he says.

❖ JEWELRY AND TIME HEAL ALL THINGS ❖

In 2006, TARA HUTCHINSON was serving her 10th year as a soldier—a military police sergeant on deployment in Iraq—when a truck she was in was hit by an improvised explosive device. Hutchinson lost her right leg above the knee and suffered a traumatic brain injury that left her with muscle tremors and difficulty controlling fine motor skills.

“I couldn’t use my hands to do anything after my injury,” Hutchinson says. “I couldn’t write. I couldn’t feed myself. I had no control over my hands at all.”

The loss of a career she loved and her independence sent Hutchinson into a deep depression. “I definitely contemplated suicide on multiple occasions because I couldn’t see any kind of a worthwhile future for myself,” she says.

A physical therapist suggested she find a new hobby to help her regain muscle strength, and Hutchinson found jewelry making. “Before that, I didn’t even own any jewelry at all,” Hutchinson says. “I was in the Army and playing in the dirt with the guys.”

She took a class, and after making jewelry for six months, Hutchinson’s jerky hand movements were smoothed out. Making gave her new purpose and new hope. She spent two years researching jewelry making and became a master goldsmith.

Hutchinson runs Tara Hutch Jewelry out of her home studio in San Antonio. “Now to be able to help women feel beautiful is the most amazing thing ever,” she says. “People can take home something that reminds them that if I can make it through this hard time, anyone can.”

✕ THE FIBER OF OUR BEING ✕

MAURA GRACE AMBROSE studied textile design and fiber arts at the Savannah College of Art and Design in Georgia, where she found a passion for natural dyes and quilting. “The natural dyes were soft and chalky and harmonious, and it played into the poetic, beautiful parts of art,” says Ambrose, a Bluebonnet Electric Cooperative member. “The colors were alive because they came from something that was alive.”

Ambrose runs Folk Fibers from her home studio in Bastrop, where she forages and tends an organic garden for plant-based dyes. It takes about 250 hours to make a bed-sized quilt with Ambrose’s process of natural dyeing and hand stitching. “I can’t compromise on the process because that’s what makes them special and makes them an heirloom,” she says.

For Ambrose, making is a creative expression, the revival of an ancient process and a way to connect to a community. “The long-term goal is to teach, spread the word and inspire others,” she says. “In those exchanges and conversations, nothing else matters. The women become so empowered to make quilts themselves.”

✂ WORKING WITH WOOD ✂

RYAN DRAPELA grew up selling watermelons near his home in El Campo, southwest of Houston. “I was born with the hustle,” Drapela says. He sold small skateboards in third grade, duct tape wallets in middle school, and candy and jerky in high school.

“We grew up super broke,” explains Drapela, a member of Wharton County Electric Cooperative. “I started buying all my school clothes and supplies myself in the seventh grade.” Drapela walked into his high school woodshop and found a new business opportunity creating cutting boards from wood scraps. His offerings expanded to clipboards, bottle-cap tabletops and custom plaques. The orders from his Etsy store kept growing.

In May 2019, Drapela earned his degree and the title of Entrepreneur of the Year from Texas A&M University’s agriculture school. He runs Drapela Woodworks with 15 employees fulfilling 1,000 orders a week for his Man Stands docking stations. “I grew and grew from persistence and hard work, not pure talent, not pure intellectual knowledge,” he says. “Just from working harder, longer and more consistently than competitors.” For Drapela, his success is a measure of his ability to create change in the world, whether it’s a new product or jobs for the local economy. “Whatever I’m doing, it’s a way to chase my capacity,” he says.

✕ DIVINE INTERVENTION ✕

Tucked into the gentle hills of Christoval, 20 miles south of San Angelo, you'll find the Mount Carmel Hermitage Monastery, where the HERMITS OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY OF MOUNT CARMEL make breads, jellies, fudge and honey. In 1991, Father Fabian, a priest from San Angelo, founded the hermitage with $2,000. Until 1994, he lived alone in a remote house. "He had the vision, the grace and the leap of faith to give it all up and start from zero," says Brother Martin, who joined the hermitage in 2001.

"Monks have always worked to support themselves by their own hands," Martin says. "There is a beautiful relation between making food and the idea of communion. We are making something that people are going to put into their bodies for their sustenance and enjoyment, and there's a communion of spirit there."

Today, the eight monks of the Mt. Carmel Hermitage live in silence and solitude. "Our order is a very simple order," Martin says. "We're not interested in scholarly work or writing papers or books. We just try to pray and work and maybe we do badly sometimes, but we try. We try hard."

The hermitage has a gift shop and an online store from which they ship all over the world.

Bring Home a $100,000 Bill

And SAVE $99,970.05!

Have you ever dreamed of holding a $100,000 bill in your hands?

Now you can take home a gold currency adaptation featuring the iconic design of the Series 1934 $100,000 Gold Certificate, struck in gold and produced under license to the Smithsonian®!

99.9% Pure Gold History In Your Hands

In 1934, the U.S. Government issued $100,000 Gold Certificates—but they were never meant for general circulation. The United States had left behind the gold standard the year prior, and were in need of a new way to transfer large amounts of wealth between Federal Reserve banks. The $100,000 Gold Certificate legally represented its worth in gold, and didn't require a forklift to move.

By 1960, the notes had served their purpose, and most were destroyed. Only a small number still exist, including notes held by the Smithsonian.

100mg of 99.9% Pure Gold

These Series 1934 $100,000 Currency Strikes bear a design based on the Smithsonian's originals—a portrait of President Woodrow Wilson, along with the official Smithsonian sunburst. Best of all, they come minted in 100 mg of 99.9% pure (24k) gold!

Limited Mintage — Secure Yours NOW!

For this first-ever release, only 5,000 of these Series 1934 $100,000 Gold Certificate Currency Strikes were produced. These are the very first of their kind, created with 100mg of 99.9% pure gold. CONSERVATION AND SAFETY INFORMATION

During the winter, covering cold surfaces with an area rug can improve comfort and helps retain indoor heat.

Steps To Stay Comfortable This Winter

SO YOU'VE BEEFED UP THE INSULATION IN YOUR HOUSE BUT IT still feels a bit chilly. What more can you do? Actually, there are many additional steps you can take to warm up your home and your family.

An important piece of the comfort puzzle is radiant heat, which transfers heat from a warm surface to a colder one. A room that's 70 degrees can still feel uncomfortably chilly if there's a cold surface nearby, like a single-pane window, hardwood floor or an exterior wall. Covering these cold surfaces can help.

Try using area rugs, wall quilts, tapestries, bookcases and heavy curtains to help prevent heat loss and make your home feel more comfortable. Use radiant heat to your advantage: A dark-colored tile floor that receives several hours of direct sun can retain heat during the day and radiate it into the room during the evening.

Another possible cause of discomfort during winter is air movement. We recognize this when weather forecasts report wind chill factor, which is a calculation combining temperature and wind speed.

Moving air makes us feel colder, which is why we use fans in the summer. But during the winter, cold, outdoor air can infiltrate our homes.

On average, a typical home loses about half its air every hour, and that amount can increase when outdoor conditions are extremely cold and windy. In this case, the best way to keep your home toasty is to minimize air leaks.

These are some of the most common spots air leaks occur:

- ▶ Penetrations and cracks around windows and doors.
- ▶ Exterior cracks in brickwork and siding.
- ▶ Plumbing and wiring penetrations from the exterior to the interior of the home.
- ▶ Mail slots or pet doors.

A variety of products, like caulk, weatherstripping, outlet gaskets and dryer vent covers, can be used to seal these leaks.

Your pursuit of comfort should also include a careful look at your home's heating system. Is it distributing heat evenly and efficiently? Forced-air systems distribute air through supply ducts and registers. Small rooms may have only one register, but large rooms could have several. You may find some supply registers are blowing copious amounts of warm air and others little at all.

Ideally, every room should have return air registers. If you see possible shortcomings with your forced-air system, enlist the help of a certified contractor who knows how to improve ductwork.

Ensure your furnace is running at peak efficiency by scheduling an annual inspection. Check your filter monthly and replace or clean it as necessary.

Beyond that, you can always warm up by wearing heavier clothing, doing some light exercise throughout the day, and snuggling with a pet or under a blanket.

By taking some of these small steps, you can enjoy a more comfortable winter at home.

Be Smart With Space Heaters

WHILE A GOOD CENTRAL HEATING SYSTEM IS DESIGNED TO MEET WHOLE-HOUSE NEEDS, sometimes we have to turn to space heaters for additional warmth. And in some cases, small space heaters can make financial sense—for example, if you only want to heat or supplement inadequate heating in one room. However, a space heater is not necessarily an economical source of long-term warmth.

Getting More for Less

The key to efficiency is using space heaters in smaller rooms that are occupied infrequently, in conjunction with lower thermostat settings on your central system.

Lowering thermostat settings from 70 to 65 degrees and using a thermostat-controlled space heater to heat 10% of a home's conditioned floor space will save about $67 a year. Space heaters are most efficient when used in small spaces for limited periods and will likely waste energy if used to heat too large of an area.

Buy the right size heater for the right size space—too small and the results could be disappointing, too large or powerful and you'll be uncomfortable (and pay more).

Safe, Not Sorry

Space heaters get seasonal use, but they are responsible for 25,000 residential fires a year. Burn injuries associated with surface contacts with room heaters send about 6,000 people to emergency rooms every year.

Because the devices are designed to give off heat, they should always be plugged directly into the wall and set in locations clear of all flammable materials and out of reach of small children, pets and anyone with impaired mobility.

Choose a heater with an adjustable thermostat and a tip-over safety feature to automatically shut off in the event that the unit tilts beyond its upright position.

Quick Tips for Thanksgiving Savings

Turn down the thermostat. With a full house and a hot kitchen, your house will be too steamy at its usual setting.

Replace your lightbulbs with LED bulbs. Your guests won't notice a difference in lighting, but you'll see a difference in your energy bill.

Don't just stuff the turkey—stuff the oven. As long as your oven will be running all day, make the most of it by cooking several dishes at once. A variation of 25 degrees in either direction from the recommended cooking temperature will still produce the desired result in most cases.

Cook at least one dish from start to finish in the microwave. Microwaves are faster than the oven and use about one-third the electricity.

Keep cleanup easy. Load the dishwasher completely full. With a mountain of dinner plates, using the dishwasher will be more efficient than hand-washing.

Don't rush to put leftovers in the refrigerator, which will work harder to cool off hot foods. Let leftovers cool slightly on the counter.

A white space heater with a black grille and a black power cord. The heater has two dials on the right side: a top dial with a red indicator light and a bottom dial with a red and blue indicator. The background is a solid blue color. Text boxes with white and yellow backgrounds provide safety tips.

DO: Plug your space heater directly into the wall outlet.

DO: Keep your space heater at a safe distance (at least 3 feet) from kids, pets and flammable items.

DON'T: Leave your space heater unattended. Always unplug it before you leave the house or go to bed.

DON'T: Use an extension cord to plug in your space heater. It can cause the heater to overheat and can be a tripping hazard.

DON'T: Place your space heater near curtains, clothing, furniture or bedding.

DO: Buy a unit with an automatic shut-off in case the unit tips over or you forget to shut it off.

NEW
Footrest extension for better support
head to toe

You can’t always lie down in bed and sleep. Heartburn, cardiac problems, hip or back aches – and dozens of other ailments and worries. Those are the nights you’d give anything for a comfortable chair to sleep in: one that reclines to exactly the right degree, raises your feet and legs just where you want them, supports your head and shoulders properly, and operates at the touch of a button.

Our Perfect Sleep Chair® does all that and more. More than a chair or recliner, it’s designed to provide total comfort. Choose your preferred heat and massage settings, for hours of soothing relaxation. Reading or watching TV? Our chair’s recline technology allows you to pause the chair in an infinite number of settings. And best of all, it features a powerful lift mechanism that tilts the entire chair forward, making it easy to stand. You’ll love the other benefits, too. It helps with correct spinal alignment and promotes back pressure relief, to prevent back and muscle pain. The overstuffed, oversized biscuit style back and unique seat design will cradle you in comfort. Generously filled, wide armrests provide enhanced arm support when sitting or reclining. It even has a battery backup in case of a power outage.

White glove delivery included in shipping charge. Professionals will deliver the chair to the exact spot in your home where you want it, unpack it, inspect it, test it, position it, and even carry the packaging away! Finders Weepers

Treasure discovered in 1885 led to trouble for a Bell County ranch hand

BY CLAY COPPEDGE

ONE DAY IN 1885, A YOUNG MAN NAMED A.C. Urvin left the Turnbo Ranch near Youngsport, in western Bell County, where he worked as a hand, to visit his father near Bertram in Burnet County. He crossed the Lampasas River near the McBride settlement and sat down on what he thought was a rock to wring out his wet socks. The rock turned out to be an old stone jar full of gold and silver coins, some dated as early as 1671.

Though Texas history is crammed with stories about lost gold and silver—the Lost Bowie Mine, Steinheimer’s silver, Jean Lafitte’s buried booty—we don’t see a lot of stories about found treasures. This story turned out to be an exception. Urvin probably knew exactly what he’d found.

Stories of a Mexican treasure buried somewhere in that area had been retold for decades. Old-timers told of how groups of Mexican miners and treasure hunters had visited this section of the river for many years, always looking for something. They never told anybody what they were looking for until one day, when a blabbermouth revealed that the object of their pursuit was a large stone jar full of coins and three metal chests filled with gold and silver.

The locals kept a close eye on the treasure hunters as they consulted their compasses and poked holes in the ground, but after several days, the searchers always went home empty-handed.

Urvin hadn’t been looking for the treasure, but he did not go home empty-handed. He put some of the coins in his pocket, carefully concealed the jar and continued on his way. That evening, at his father’s house, a neighbor spied Urvin inspecting the coins. Urvin told him he’d won the gold playing poker, but the neighbor was skeptical. He told another neighbor, who was likewise skeptical. Maybe they believed that people don’t play poker with rare and valuable Mexican coins. And the truth was Urvin was lying.

Urvin returned the next day with his brother to the spot where he’d concealed the jar. The brothers filled a couple of bags with more coins, then again hid the jar. They returned to Bertram and told locals Eugene Gahn and a man named McDonald of their find. Soon, Urvin’s newfound wealth was an open secret throughout the region.

At that point, Urvin probably went to Mexico to exchange the coins for American dollars. Though his fortunes had increased, his reputation suffered. The popular notion in Bell and Williamson counties was that the “young man of industrious habits,” as the Belton Journal described him, was actually a thief and a liar.

“At Belton, the story did not go far until it reached the ears of Moses Whitsitt,” Harry Christmas wrote in a 1964 edition of Real West magazine. “He went immediately to the Belton Journal, telling the editor that young Urvin was wanted for theft. He [said] that a merchant named Atkinson of Florence, who had been a rare coin collector, was robbed of his collection. He further made the claim that young Urvin’s alias was Maxwell.”

To defend himself in the court of public opinion, Urvin wrote a letter to the Georgetown Sun. The letter appeared in the August 13, 1885, edition and read: "Dear Sirs; I found $11,300 in old Spanish coins and have it now in U.S. currency. As to my name, it is A.C. Urvin. I have both father and mother and two brothers to prove my connections. I am now living in the neighborhood of Holland with G.T. Smith. I am no thief or robber. I will be in Belton this week to see you. I can prove as good a character, from my childhood down to this time, as any man in Texas. Yours truly, A.C. Urvin."

In reporting this, an El Paso paper concluded, "The fact that Mr. Urvin found the money seems to be well documented."

And that, as far as history knows, is the end of the story.

We don't know what became of the three chests loaded with gold or if they even existed. We don't know what happened to Urvin because he disappears from the historical record after that, but it's safe to assume he never worked on the Turnbo Ranch again. His $11,300 find in 1885 would be worth about $300,000 today.

Others may have made similar finds but kept quiet about it to avoid just the kind of trouble and suspicion that followed Urvin after he claimed finders keepers on that stone jar.

My Grandmother and LBJ

How a persuasive woman helped start the school that launched Johnson's career

BY LEE GADDIS

MY GRANDMOTHER FLORENCE CHILES was born in 1878 in Lockhart. She married John Terry Maltzberger in 1900, and they ranched the South Texas brush country in La Salle County. In the 1920s, they built a house in Cotulla and continued to operate ranches.

Florence was stylish, usually wearing hats and gloves when in public. She was Cotulla's postmaster and was respected and persuasive. She had a strong sense of right and wrong and an instinct for power. She appointed herself advocate of the local Mexican American children, and by the mid-1920s, she was actively lobbying county leaders to build a school for them.

She cared deeply for the poor in her South Texas community, who lived in very difficult conditions. There was little education or health care and no social services. Most of them labored in the fields, working cotton, beets or spinach crops. And most of them did not see a way out of poverty.

She was able to grab county leaders by the nose and persuade them to support her plan for a school. After working all of her connections, she finally focused her efforts on the county judge, G.A. Welhausen. When she played her last card—proposing to name a new school after Welhausen—the county commissioners knew she had won. School bonds were approved in 1926, and the school was built by 1927.

In 1928, 20-year-old Lyndon B. Johnson took a break from his studies at San Marcos Teachers College, now Texas State University, and accepted a teaching job at Welhausen School to help cover his tuition expenses. He was one of five teachers and taught mathematics and history to 29 fifth, sixth and seventh graders. He was shocked at the poverty he saw and how little many of the people had.

Johnson soon made friends with my grandmother, who was known as "La Florita," and the two of them worked on improving conditions at the school. There was no playground equipment, cafeteria or school buses.

My grandmother urged Johnson to help lead the school, and he was soon promoted to principal. They encouraged Welhausen's primarily Spanish-speaking pupils to learn English and get an education, knowing that it would open doors for them. Johnson created opportunities for his students and organized debates, spelling bees and physical education activities.

Johnson soon learned that Florence was his best champion for improving school conditions. She would march into county commissioners and city council meetings and demand funds for books and equipment. They rolled their eyes when she showed up, but she usually prevailed.

She persuaded city and county leaders to dedicate a city block across the street from the school as a park. Volunteers came together and built walkways, benches and a bandstand. The park was named Florita Plaza in my grandmother's honor.

The school and park became the hub of the Mexican American community. There was a dance and celebration almost every Saturday night. Florence arranged for a surplus government building to be moved to the park, and it served as a community center where she presided over many fundraising efforts, including a massive annual rummage sale.

Working together, Johnson and Florence became lifelong friends, though Johnson returned to college after a year in Cotulla. The two of them corresponded for years. Florence's only granddaughter, Terry Gay Puckett, attended a junior college in Washington, D.C., when Johnson was then a senator, and he showed her all the sights and even took her to Dwight Eisenhower's inauguration.

Florence spent the rest of her life advocating for the Hispanic community, often driving sick or injured people to Santa Rosa Hospital in San Antonio. She worked on immunization campaigns and food drives and twisted arms for donations. She was a great woman.

Florence died in June 1963, when Johnson was vice president. He sent a huge floral arrangement for her funeral. Five months later, in the most tragic way, he became president of the United States.

Lyndon B. Johnson with his first pupils at the Welhausen School in Cotulla in 1928.

Johnson traveled to San Marcos in 1965 to sign the Higher Education Act, which increased federal funding for universities, creating scholarships and giving low-interest loans to students. In a speech that November day, he said, "I shall never forget the faces of the boys and the girls in that little Welhausen Mexican school, and I remember even yet the pain of realizing and knowing then that college was closed to practically every one of those children because they were too poor. And I think it was then that I made up my mind that this nation could never rest while the door to knowledge remained closed to any American. So here, today, back on the campus of my youth, that door is swinging open far wider than it ever did before."

Alamo Survivor?

Legendary San Antonio character cast a convincing spell

BY GENE FOWLER

AS MUCH AS WE TEXANS HAVE remembered the Alamo over the past 183 years, you'd think we'd have all the facts nailed down. We don't. Historians are still uncertain about whether famed Tennessean David Crockett died during the battle or was executed afterward.

And while we know that a handful of noncombatants survived the battle, one often-told story of survival remains unconfirmed. In the 1880s and 1890s, the venerable Madam Candelaria recounted her dramatic story of attending to the deathly ill Jim Bowie as Mexican soldados besieged the mission-turned-fort.

In the late 1800s, a steady stream of tourists and reporters visited her San Antonio home to witness her passionate retelling. New York newspapers reported her account. Atlanta promoters sought to book her for the 1895 Cotton States and International Exposition. Souvenir photographs of her dignified countenance abound.

Legend holds that in 1836, while managing a San Antonio hotel frequented by Texians, Madam Candelaria received a letter from Sam Houston asking her to nurse a typhoid-stricken Bowie. In one of her accounts, she was gathering medicinal herbs at 4 a.m. when she spied Santa Anna's approaching army and hurried to the Alamo to sound the alarm.

Probably born in 1803 as María Andrea Castañón near present-day Piedras Negras, Madam Candelaria holds a special place in San Antonio lore.

Mexico, Madam Candelaria obtained her sobriquet from the first name of her second husband, Candelario Villanueva. A well-known San Antonio figure before her celebrity as an Alamo survivor, she operated a fandango parlor in the mid-1800s.

Memoirist Vinton Lee James described the parlor as a place "where the beaux and belles of San Antonio romped, played, and danced to the sweet strains of the orchestra and dined on the delicious dishes prepared by Señora Candelaria's own hand." In 1883, the San Antonio Light noted that she "keeps a stand on Military Plaza" and "would like all her old friends to give her a call."

Though Texans were divided about Candelaria's story of surviving the Alamo battle, the claim won her an annual state pension of $150 in 1891. Historians remain uncertain. Former Alamo curator-historian Bruce Winders says he finds her account unlikely.

The most recently published version of the Handbook of Texas stated that most historians believed her story. An abridged account in the online Handbook presents a nuanced version by three authors.

One of the three, Maria Gomez, Candelaria's great-great-granddaughter, provided historical documents in 2011 for Paula Allen's San Antonio Express-News history column. Among them, an 1899 Bowie genealogical text states, "A Mexican woman known as an experienced nurse was brought into the building to attend [to Bowie] before it had been surrounded."

"My mother's sisters very often translated for Madam Candelaria," Gomez said. "They told us that she always wore a long, black apron with two pockets into which she would put money that was given to her by interested tourists."

Whether her story was true or not, her artistry inspired James to dub her "the most outstanding female character in San Antonio history."

She often spoke of Crockett before her death in 1899, recalling "lots of singing, storytelling, and some drinking" at her hotel after his arrival. "Crockett played the fiddle, and he played it well, if I am a judge of music.... He was one of the strangest men I ever saw."

Holiday

RECIPE CONTEST
WINNERS

THIS YEAR, we not only celebrate Texas Co-op Power's 75th anniversary but also the 15th year of our Holiday Recipe Contest. It all began when Anna Ginsberg won with her White Chocolate Ribbon Pumpkin Cake With Maple Glaze in 2005. Our contest was just starting out, but when Ginsberg won the Pillsbury Bake-Off just a few months later, we figured we knew how to pick a winner. The winning recipes this year are no exception. The grand prizewinning cheesecake is extra special because home-made cookies make up the crust. The Best Sweet winner is an ice cream—yes, ice cream is holiday food in Texas—that tastes so much like Texas Sheet Cake you'll do a double take. In the Best Savory category, tangy seafood enchiladas stole the show. And don't miss the honorable mentions: bread pudding with a twist and a breakfast stunner to spice up a holiday morning. Let these recipes inspire you to create your own new holiday favorite! —SHANNON OELRICH

$1,000 GRAND PRIZE Spiced Cookie Cheesecake With Caramel Sauce

COURTNEY PERRY | TRI-COUNTY EC

"I only dived into cheesecake making a few years ago but quickly became obsessed," Perry says. "The spice cookies provide the crumbly texture you get with a traditional graham crust but have all the flavor and essence of the holidays. I wanted to create a filling that would keep people coming back for more, which meant not too much one way or another. Velvety, but not too dense. Sweet, but not overpowering. This competition definitely has given me more confidence in my baking knowing that people outside of my inner circle enjoyed it as much as I did."

SPICED COOKIES

- ½ cup (1 stick) unsalted butter, softened
- ¼ cup sugar
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
- ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon ground allspice
- ⅛ teaspoon ground clove
- ⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1 egg
- 1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1¼ cups flour

CRUST

Spiced Cookies, crumbled

- ¼ cup brown sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup (½ stick) unsalted butter, melted

FILLING

- 2 eggs, separated
- 2 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese, softened
- ¾ cup brown sugar
- 1¼ teaspoons vanilla extract
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup sour cream
- 1½ tablespoons flour

CARAMEL SAUCE

- ½ cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons butter, cubed
- ¼ cup heavy whipping cream

- 1. SPICED COOKIES: Using a stand mixer, beat butter and sugars until fully incorporated. Add salt and all spices. Add egg and vanilla. Beat until ingredients are fully mixed together. Add flour ¼ cup at a time until dough forms. Be sure not to overmix.
- 2. Wrap dough in plastic wrap and allow to chill about 3 hours or until dough is no longer tacky.
- 3. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Line cookie sheets with parchment. Form chilled cookie dough into approximately 1-inch balls. Bake 17–20 minutes or until edges are golden. Remove cookies from oven and let cool on a wire rack.

4. CRUST: Line an 8-inch springform pan with parchment.

5. In a bowl, combine crumbled spiced cookies, brown sugar and salt. Stir in melted butter until crumbs are coated. Move crust mixture to springform pan and press into bottom and up sides. Set aside.

6. FILLING: Preheat or lower oven to 325 degrees. In a stand mixer, beat egg whites on high until stiff peaks form. Set aside.

7. In a separate bowl, beat cream cheese and brown sugar. Add egg yolks one at a time. Beat on high until fully incorporated. Lower speed of mixer and add vanilla, salt, sour cream and flour. Mix until just incorporated. Fold beaten egg whites into batter. Add batter to springform pan. Wrap bottom of the pan and up the sides with aluminum foil.

8. Create a water bath by putting the springform pan into a roasting pan and adding about 1 inch of hot water to the outer pan. Bake 75 minutes or until center is slightly jiggly. Turn off oven and leave oven door open about 30 minutes to allow cheesecake to cool slowly.

Remove from oven.

9. Once the cheesecake is fully cooled, cover springform pan with aluminum foil and allow cheesecake to chill in refrigerator overnight.

10. CARAMEL SAUCE: Add sugar to a saucepan over medium heat. Whisk until sugar is fully melted. Remove from heat and add butter. Whisk until incorporated. Slowly add heavy whipping cream until fully incorporated. Let cool.

11. Remove cheesecake from springform pan. Drizzle cooled caramel sauce over top of cheesecake and serve.

► Serves 12.

$500 BEST SWEET
Whipped Sheet
Cake Ice Cream

MARLON HAYGOOD | PEDERNALES EC

"This is my take on the classic Texas sheet cake," Haygood says.

"Starting with a whipped cream ice cream that I've been making for years off the advice of a good friend, I developed this decadent recipe. What I love most is that the recipe is so easy to adapt. I've added in dulce de leche, crushed candy bars, even ice cream cone pieces. It has a deliciously smooth taste that will please even the most die-hard ice cream lovers."

- 2 cups heavy whipping cream
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 cup sweetened condensed milk
- ¾ cup cocoa powder
- ¾ cup chopped pecans or walnuts
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract

1. In a large bowl, use a mixer on high speed to whip cream until stiff peaks form. Add sugar a small amount at a time to aid in peak formation.
 2. In a separate bowl, mix condensed milk, cocoa powder, chopped nuts and vanilla.
 3. Fold the whipped cream into the condensed milk mixture and transfer to a freezer-safe covered container. Freeze until firm, at least 24 hours.
- Serves 8-10.

$500 BEST SAVORY
Layered Redfish
Enchiladas

DENISE CRANE | VICTORIA EC

"My husband and I do not eat meat (other than fish)," Crane writes.

"However, this dish has been enjoyed by many of our meat-loving friends, and literally everyone who has tried it has requested the recipe."

- 2 large redfish fillets (1-1½ pounds)
- 1 teaspoon salt, divided use
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- ½ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
- 2 small cans (4 ounces each) mild diced green chiles, drained

- ½ cup canned black beans, drained and rinsed
 - ½ cup canned corn, drained
 - 1 pepper from can of chipotle peppers in adobo sauce, chopped (or ¾ teaspoon ground chipotle pepper)
 - 2 tablespoons lime juice
 - 1 teaspoon ground cumin
 - ½ teaspoon chili powder
 - ½ cup packed fresh cilantro, finely chopped
 - 1 cup sour cream
 - 1 jar (16 ounces) salsa verde
 - 12 corn tortillas, quartered
 - 2 cups shredded colby jack cheese, divided use
- Optional toppings: diced red onion, chopped cilantro, cotija cheese, avocado slices

1. Sprinkle redfish fillets with ¼ teaspoon salt each and let sit at room temperature 20 minutes, then lightly pat dry.
2. Heat olive oil in a large skillet over medium heat, then add fish, black pepper and garlic. Cook about 3 minutes on each side, or until cooked through.
3. Reduce heat to low, and add cream cheese, green chiles, beans, corn, chipotle, lime juice, cumin, chili powder, cilantro and remaining ½ teaspoon of salt. With a spatula or spoon, fold ingredients together in the pan while breaking apart the fillets. When all ingredients are thoroughly combined, turn off heat.
4. In a bowl, mix together the sour cream and salsa verde to make the sauce.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees.

5. To assemble enchiladas, spoon about 1 cup of the sauce into the bottom of a 9-by-13-inch baking dish. Distribute 4 of the quartered tortillas across the bottom of the dish. Spoon half of the redfish filling onto tortillas. Top with ¾ cup shredded cheese, 4 more tortillas and half of the remaining sauce. Top with all remaining filling and half of the remaining cheese. Add last 4 tortillas and all of the remaining sauce.
6. Cover pan tightly with aluminum foil and bake 30 minutes. Remove foil, add remaining cheese and bake 10–15 minutes more, until cheese is melted and bubbly. Top as desired with diced red onion, chopped cilantro, cotija cheese and avocado slices. ▶ Serves 10–12.

$250 HONORABLE MENTION

Breakfast Campeones

VALERIE DOTY | COSERV

"I grew up in the Midwest and had never had much Mexican food," Doty says. "I had never even heard of sausage gravy or Frito pie. When I first moved to the Dallas area, I only ate Mexican food in Mexican restaurants. Slowly but surely, I've tried to add some Mexican flair to some of my dishes, and even gotten a little spicier each year. We all liked this breakfast so much... I started calling it Breakfast Campeones—breakfast of champions."

- 12 large jalapeño peppers
- 8–10 slices bacon, fried and crumbled
- 1 dozen eggs
- ½–1 teaspoon salt, to taste
- 4 green onions, chopped
- 1 cup shredded cheddar jack cheese
- 1½ teaspoons dried cilantro
- 1½ teaspoons ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- 12 slices colby jack cheese

1. Line a large rimmed baking sheet with aluminum foil, shiny side down. Cut the jalapeños in half lengthwise and scoop out the seeds and ribs with a grapefruit spoon. Lay the peppers on the foil, open side up.
 2. Fry bacon and remove to drain on paper towels. Remove most of the grease from the pan, then scramble the eggs in the same pan, adding salt to taste.
 3. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In a mixing bowl, crumble the bacon and add scrambled eggs, green onions, shredded cheese, cilantro, cumin and oregano. Stir until everything is evenly distributed.
 4. Spoon a little of the mixture into each pepper half. Cut slices of cheese in half (making 24). Lay a half slice of cheese across the top of each stuffed pepper. Bake the peppers for 20–30 minutes, until the cheese starts to brown. Cool 5 minutes before serving.
- Serves 12.

$250 HONORABLE MENTION

Maple Bread Pudding With Toasted Bourbon Pecans

KITTIELE POTTS | BOWIE-CASS EC

"There seems to be three things you can always find in our home: pecans, maple syrup and Texas bourbon," Potts says. "I just started combining everything until I came up with something that worked. The consensus was this was fantastic, and everyone asked for more."

PUDDING

- 4 eggs
- 1¼ cups sugar
- 1 cup lightly packed light brown sugar
- 2 cups whole milk
- 2 cups heavy whipping cream
- ½ cup (1 stick) salted butter, melted
- 1 tablespoon vanilla extract
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 loaf French bread, torn into 1-inch pieces

MAPLE SAUCE

- 3 tablespoons salted butter
- 1 cup sugar
- ¾ cup lightly packed light brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1½ cups heavy whipping cream
- ½ cup pure maple syrup
- 1 tablespoon vanilla extract

PECANS

- 3 tablespoons salted butter
- ½ cup pure maple syrup
- ½ cup bourbon
- 3½ tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 cup roughly chopped pecans

1. PUDDING: Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a 9-by-13-inch pan.
 2. In a large bowl, whisk eggs and sugars until thoroughly combined. Add milk, cream, butter, vanilla and cinnamon, and mix well. Add bread pieces into the mixture until the liquid has been absorbed. Pour into pan.
 3. Bake approximately 55 minutes or until pudding is firm.
 4. MAPLE SAUCE: Melt butter in a saucepan on low heat. In a bowl, mix together sugars and cornstarch. Pour into the melted butter and continue to cook on low heat, stirring constantly until sugars are dissolved. Add in cream, maple syrup and vanilla; mix thoroughly. Set aside.
 5. PECANS: In a skillet on low heat, melt butter. Slowly add maple syrup and bourbon and mix well, then stir in brown sugar until sugar is dissolved. Stirring slowly, add pecans. Cook on low heat, stirring constantly, 5 minutes or until thick. Mixture can burn quickly, so do not leave unattended.
 6. To serve, cut warm bread pudding into portions and pour warm sauce over each. Top with bourbon-toasted pecans.
- Serves 12–14.

Stopping by the Stagecoach

Historic Salado landmark rides again

THE YEAR IS 1861. A TALL, SILVER-HAIRED man with a grizzled face stands on the balcony of the Shady Villa Hotel in Salado. He delivers a fiery warning to fellow Texans about the perils of secession and the danger posed by the looming Civil War. After his speech, Sam Houston steps inside the two-story building, eats his supper, then heads to bed. We don't know all of the details exactly, but the fact of Houston's speech is gospel in Salado.

And here I sit in 2019, in the room where Houston supposedly slept, sipping on a bourbon Old-Fashioned and munching on a strawberry and arugula salad, as I wait for my steak and jalapeño creamed corn. Times have changed, but some things have stayed the same at the Stagecoach Inn.

Erected just before Houston's speech, the building is the oldest in town. It was a stop for cowboys on the Chisholm Trail and for stagecoaches. Legend holds that guests included Gen. George A. Custer and Charles Goodnight. Even Sam Bass and Jesse James reportedly stayed the night. In Texas, only San Antonio's Menger Hotel has been accommodating travelers longer. And the Menger doesn't have the legend that a nearby cave holds Spanish gold.

In 1943, Dion and Ruth Van Bibber purchased the property and renamed it the Stagecoach Inn, using delicious food and Southern hospitality to attract travelers. Ruth Van Bibber added the restaurant's prix fixe menu consisting of dishes prepared fresh and recited by the waitstaff; there was no written menu. Tomato aspic (think tangy Jell-O), hush puppies, an entree of the day and a strawberry kiss for dessert.

The Stagecoach gained national recognition, helped along by features in Life magazine in 1957 and in Time in 1966. However, by the early 2000s, postponed maintenance and endless construction on Interstate 35 dealt a serious blow to the inn and restaurant.

In 2016, a group purchased the failing property, shuttering the Stagecoach for the first time before pouring resources into renovating the property. They reopened in 2018.

One summer night, I arrived close to dinnertime, eager to experience the hotel's new chapter. The appearance of the historic two-story building offered a comforting assurance that the new owners respect the hotel's past. After I checked into my room, which was appointed in a midcentury modern style, I walked past the pool crowded with sunbathers and headed for the restaurant. The updated dining room had a historic chic vibe and included classic and modern rooms. With its huge fireplace, the expansive bar looked like a West Texas hunting lodge.

I settled in for dinner, and the food hit all the right spots. I had no choice but to order the signature strawberry kiss dessert—because if something has been on the menu for almost 75 years, it has to be good. It arrived with a base of baked meringue topped with a scoop of vanilla ice cream and covered in glazed fresh strawberries. After the first bite, I closed my eyes and felt my blood sugar spike to delicious heights.

As I savored the last bite, one of the new owners came out, and we chatted about the Stagecoach's transformation. He described the details of the restoration, and I asked him if he found the Spanish gold buried in that cave. He cracked a smile and said with a Texas-sized wink, "How do you think we paid for all of this?"

Chet Garner shares his Texplorations as the host of The Daytripper on PBS.
